

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: 8/23/18

Rob McLeod, Education Coordinator
American Watchmakers-Clockmakers Institute
866-367-2924
rob@awci.com

American Timepiece Austin

Where Watch and Clock Enthusiasts Gather to Shop, Trade, Network, Learn, and Have Fun

October 12-13 in Austin, Texas

Holiday Inn Austin Midtown

Harrison, Ohio -- The American Watchmakers-Clockmakers Institute (AWCI) announces American Timepiece Austin. This unique event brings together watch and clock collectors, enthusiasts, watch brands, watch and clock repair professionals, and vendors of watches and clocks as well as vendors of watch and clock parts and supplies. It is free and open to the public. This event occurs in conjunction with TimeCon, AWCI's annual convention.

If you live in New York or California, your options for watch shows and events are almost endless. If you live anywhere in between it can be more difficult to find a good watch event. But it isn't only the show's location in America's heartland that makes it unique. The show features a selection of amazing watch brands alongside other horological vendors that support the watchmaking industry. Because of the show's connection with the American Watchmakers-Clockmakers Institute's annual TimeCon, the show is crawling with professional watchmakers and clockmakers who are sure to bring a different perspective to the buying experience. No other show is frequented by so many professionals willing to share their expertise!

No matter your connection to the industry, this show has something for you. So, take this opportunity to meet and network with horology's cream of the crop in Austin this October.

For more details visit www.americantimepiece.com/austin.

Photos videos and more at <https://www.awci.com/press-room/american-timepiece-austin/>

For almost 60 years, AWCI has been working to connect horological professionals in the United States. This year they have expanded their services beyond the professional to the entire horological community. This initiative started with their series of Build a Watch classes, which have been offered in 3 cities so far and which are scheduled for Austin, Detroit, Chicago, and Cincinnati this year, with more cities to be announced next year.

The American Timepiece Austin event is a continued expansion. AWCI wants to support the entire community, which means helping brands connect not only with other members of industry but also with the customer. Whether you are looking for a new watch, a watchmaker, tools, or just want to talk about watches you will find what you are looking for at American Timepiece Austin.

More News from AWCI

AWCI's TimeCon: A Horological Gathering

The annual convention of the American Watchmakers-Clockmakers Institute is a 3-day convention for horological professionals and enthusiasts featuring lectures, educational classes, networking, and social gatherings. Each year AWCI recognizes excellence in the field of horology at their Awards Banquet. This year they will present two students with $2,500 Greenwood Memorial Grants to help them further their horological education.

AWCI's Build a Watch Classes

AWCI has been offering the best horological training for more than 50 years. Now watch collectors, sales professionals, and anyone with an interest in horology can spend a day with AWCI's watchmakers learning how a watch works while building their own watch. During this 6-hour class, you will assemble a

Swiss-made ETA 6497 movement, lubricate the moving parts, install a dial and hands, and case up the watch before wearing it home!

Archie Perkins Mobile Horology Classroom

Starting in 2019, pursuing your watchmaking dream will become even easier. AWCI is currently building the world's first horology classroom on wheels. Next year we take to the highways with a 38-foot mobile classroom built to accommodate 8 students in a state-of-the art training facility on wheels. Whether you have a passionate curiosity or you are a professional watchmaker looking to expand your knowledge, there will be classes coming to your area soon. When our mobile classroom arrives in a city, we will offer a wide variety of classes including our signature Build a Watch Classes, training for professionals, sales and customer-service training. Perhaps most importantly, our mobile classroom will allow us to participate in high school career days and Maker Faires, encouraging the next generation of watchmakers and clockmakers.